PREFACE

TO

FIRST (SIX PER CENT.) EDITION.

To produce a book of tables which should combine all the essential qualities of comprehensiveness, simplicity, compactness, facility of calculation and cheapness has been a problem which Interest Table makers and publishers have long been trying to solve. And indeed, its solution was a matter of some difficulty; for, by the ordinary methods of arrangement, a gain in favor of one of these qualities was obtained at the expense of all the rest. The elaborate tables are costly and cumbersome: the cheap and compact tables are inefficient and almost worthless.

The Author believes that he has overcome these difficulties; for, by the following method of arrangement, 36 pages are made to contain all that can be found in ordinary books of several hundred pages; while results are reached with a rapidity, certainty and accuracy heretofore unattainable. Every figure of the principal is made the INDEX of its own interest, thereby reducing the liability to error to such a bare possibility, that its occurrence can be explained by gross carelessness alone.

When will a note dated March 4th, at 90 days, mature? To 63, under March and opposite 4, add 93: the sum, 156 is found under June, and opposite 5. Ans. June 5th.

How many days from Nov. 26, 1870, to April 5th, 1871? From 460, under April and opposite 5, in SECOND YEAR, subtract 330, under November and opposite 26 in FIRST YEAR. Ans. 130 days.

In Leap Year, when February intervenes, an allowance of 1 day must be made.

EXPLANATIONS.

The principal is shown in large figures, in DOLLARS; the interest in small figures, in CENTS. Each dollar of principal is an index to its own interest in cents; the cents of interest being placed directly beneath and to the left of the given dollars of principal.

EXAMPLE.

What is the interest on $8765 for 3 months and 18 days at 6 per cent?

Turn to column headed 3 mo. 18 d.

Under and to the left of	8000 dollars,
we find	14400 cents.
Under and to the left of	700 dollars,
we find	1260 cents.
Under and to the left of	60 dollars,
we find	108 cents.
Under	5 dollars,
we find	9 cents.

Adding the small figures, we have 15777 cents, or $157.77, the interest required.

By substituting dollars for days, and days for dollars, the interest on all sums under $360, and on all sums, which are multiples of 10, under $3600, may be ascertained at a glance.

Thus, to find the interest on 265 dollars for 90 days, turn to column of 265 days, and ascertain the interest on $90, viz $3.97.

Proof. In column of 90 days under

200 dollars,
we find
300 cents.
Under 60 dollars,
we find
90 cents.
Under 5 dollars,
we find
7 cents.

Adding small figures, we have 397 or $3.97

To find the interest on $2650, for 90 days, ascertain the interest on $900 for 265 days, $39.75.

Note.—The figures to the right of the given cents of interest are, respectively, mills, tenths of a mill, etc. Thus, the interest on $100 for 1 day, is 1 cent, 6 mills and 7-tenths of a mill. In such cases take another cent of interest.

TO ASCERTAIN INTEREST AT ALL RATES PER CENT.

For 3 per cent. take one-half of 6 per cent.
 For $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. take one-half of 7 per cent.
 For 4 per cent. take one-half of 8 per cent.
 For $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. take one-half of 9 per cent.
 For 5 per cent. take one-half of 10 per cent.

For any other rate, use the 1 and 10 per cent. Table, multiplying principal, time or interest (as may be most convenient) by the required rate.

EXAMPLE.

What is the interest on \$100 for 18 days, at $7\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.?

1st Method.— $100 \times 7\frac{1}{2} = 750$; interest on \$750 for 18 days at 1 per cent. = 37.5, or 38 cents.

2d Method.— $18 \times 7\frac{1}{2} = 135$; interest on \$100 for 135 days at 1 per cent. = .37,5, or 38 cents.

3d Method.—Interest on \$100 for 18 days at 1 per cent. = .050; $.050 \times 7\frac{1}{2} = .375$, or 38 cents.

 Always bear in mind that the interest at ONE per cent. is shown in MILLS.

FOR AVERAGING ACCOUNTS.

When the account is embraced between January 1st and December 31st of any given year.

Find the interest (in the 8 per cent. Tables) on each item of the account; add up the interest, annex two ciphers, and divide by the amount of the account (omitting cents).

The quotient will be found under 100, in the column having the average date at its head.

EXAMPLE.

When does the following account mature?

	Interest.
Jan. 16, $900,	$ 3.20, found in column under Jan. 16.
June 20, 540,	20.52, found in column under June 20.
Dec. 26, 860,	63.80, found in column under Dec. 26.
<hr/>	<hr/>
$2300	$92.52

$925200 \div 2300 = 402$, which is found under 100, in column under June 30, the average date.

When the account embraces parts of two years, or runs through several years.

Proceed as before, and to the interest on such items as overrun one year, and for each year of such excess, add 365 days interest on such items; divide the sum of the interest by the amount of the account, and find the quotient as before. But, if the quotient exceeds 8.11 (the interest on $100 for 365 days) subtract 8.11 from the quotient and find the remainder under 100, which will be in the column under the average date in the 2d, etc. years, FORWARD, according to the amount of such excess over 8.11.

EXAMPLE.

	Interest.
1871. March 4, $300,	$4.20, in column under March 4.
1873. April 5, 700,	14.78, in column under April 5.
	113.56, interest for 730 days on $700.
<hr/>	<hr/>
1000)	132.5400(13.25.

$13.25 - 8.11 = 5.14$, which (or its nearest approximate amount 5.13) is found under 100, in column headed August 29, the average date, in the second year (1872).

It is evident that the average date of the above account is not in the first year, as under date of Dec. 31, $100 earns only 8.11. The excess, 5.14, carries the average date forward to August 29th in the next year.

When the account contains items sold on different terms of credit.

Ascertain the due date of the items, and proceed as before.

When there are items of DEBIT and CREDIT in the account.

Find the interest on each item on both sides of the account; subtract the lesser from the greater side; divide the balance of interest (annexing two ciphers) by the balance of the account, and find the quotient, under 100 in the column having the average date at its head.

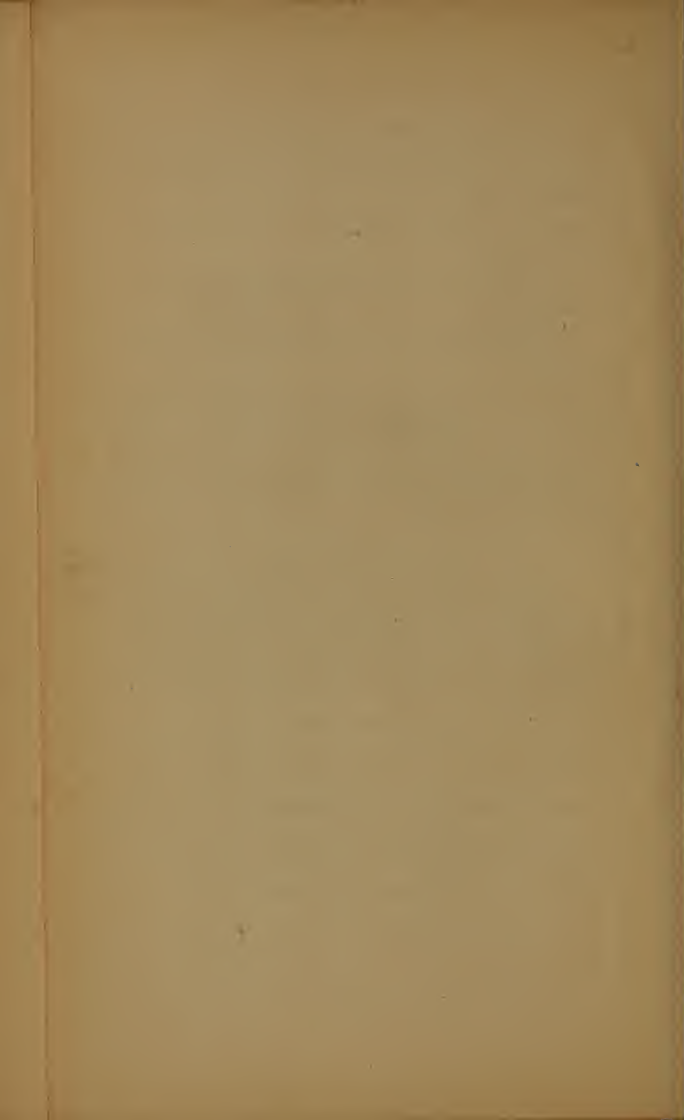

INTEREST ON CENTS.

It would seem to be a useless refinement to compute interest on cents; the general rule of rejecting cents less than 50, and adding $1 for cents more than 50, being sufficiently precise; but the Tables furnish a ready means of ascertaining the interest, if required.

Cents of principal do not earn cents of interest until the small figures indicating the interest extend beyond the left of the column: thus, it will be found (see 6 per cent. Tables,) that 90 cents do not earn 1 cent of interest, until the 67th day.

Turn to column of 90 days (in 6 per cent. Tables).

The interest on 90 cents is found to be 1 cent, $3\frac{1}{2}$ mills; on 80 cents, 1 cent, 2 mills; on 70 cents, 1 cent and $\frac{1}{2}$ mill; on 60 cents, 9 mills, etc., etc.
